Reflections from Gospel Ralte

Early years:

My father was sent to be a missionary to North Western Part of Burma 23rd February 1925 by North East India General Mission (NEIGM)...His first wife died, and he got married again. I, as a second child, was born to Rev. Dengkunga Ralte in his early 60s and Mrs. Khuangkhumi Ralte in Rih Khawdar village, near Rih Lake on the 20th of December, 1965. My father died when I was just 11 years old on 7th May 1977. My Mum raised us up in the midst of hardship. I used to help my family by working as a labourer (kuli) from my childhood. I still remember that day.

“Such knowledge is too wonderful for me. It is so high that I cannot attain it”, exclaimed the writer of Psalm 139, contemplating an all-knowing, ever present God.

Millennia later, those words are still full of meaning for us. But so much else has changed! Knowledge – or at least information – has expanded at a dizzying rate. We are left disorientated.

We – and others – can know so much about us. Our location and movements, our buying patterns and finances, our communication and relationships....

We can explore genealogy and the lives of our forebears. On Facebook we can know all kinds of trivial details about others. We can link up with friends and family who have been out of touch for decades. News assaults our eyes and ears. Horrors of war and disaster. Endless political shenanigans. Sordid details of relationships gone wrong. Graphic photos of just about anything. Too much information!

Institutions that once formed the scaffold of everyday life are tottering. What do we grab hold of to steady ourselves, our minds and our spirits?

To know is to be responsible, someone has said. But we know so much. How can we act on every need before us? We are paralysed.

“Be still and know that I am God”, says another songwriter in Psalm 46, emphasizing that God is there amid uproar and chaos.

I’m not very good at prayer. But a key part of it is taking time to listen – allowing time for the dust around us to settle, for our minds to become clear and our spirits tuned to what really matters.

Paul, in Romans 12, told his readers, “be transformed by the renewing of your minds, so that you may discern what is the will of God.”

Take time out – to listen, to hear.

Gospel Ralte's Reflections

I followed adults and young people carrying goods (clothings/longyi) from Moreh (India) to Tamu (Burma) swimming across the river.

The Call:

...I received God's special call again through a series of Bible Studies held during the Holy Week of 1978, after accepting Jesus Christ as my personal Lord and Saviour, I dedicated my life to God on Easter Sunday. Since then I had a great passion to study the Bible and serve God. Mum said that as a small boy whenever people asked me what I would like to become when I grew old, I used to answer, "Pastor."

Early ministry and theological education:

After my confirmation, I straightway involved in ministry of Children Sunday School, Youth Departments and Ethnic Community Social Movement. I took part in gospel outreach programs and other evangelistic Preaching tours.

While working as a District Clerk in Tamu District Office of the Methodist Church, my Mum prayed for me and I left my home town in pursuit of theological education. I took any available jobs given by the College. By God's gracious provision I successfully completed two degree courses, B.Th., and M.Min, from Presbyterian Theological Seminary and Asia Evangelical College and Seminary in India. I attended a Discipleship Training School (DTS) of Youth with a Mission. Went back home to Burma and got married with Grace Dengthangi Ralte (Mya Yee) in 1995, and now we are blessed with two children, Gloria Lalrawngbawli Ralte and Ebenezer Vanlalzirsangliana Ralte.

Evangelist, Theological Educator and Pastor:

Soon after getting home, I worked as itinerant evangelist, Bible teacher, and we run a discipleship training for local young people. Since 1997, Grace, B.Th., B.D., M.Div, and I started teaching career at Myanmar Theological College in Mandalay...

Refugee Minister and Minister in refuge:

For almost two year I served the Lord as a refugee minister among Burmese (chin ethnic) refugees and migrant workers in Malaysia.... The persecution and discrimination based on our faith and race I have been experiencing since my childhood was still smoothly running upfront on the soil of military-backed Buddhist majority country. Using slogan of "one religion, one race, one nation," the then Burmese military government introduced 'no conversion law,' which had extremely strengthened the existing nationalism that turned towards our ministry. Due to baptismal and matrimonial service I conducted between a Buddhist young man and a Christian girl, I had to flee the country for security, thus becoming a refugee myself. Leaving our children behind, we came to Australia in December 2014.

Life in Australia:

No permit to do any paid job, no Centrelink support, no Medicare and life was so tough without the support and care from the church, Red Cross and community we received for about two years. Mulgrave Uniting Church became our mother church. We had a place to stay. But in those times I volunteered myself for the service of other refugees and asylum seekers. When we had permission to work, we took any available job, from gardening, picking, packing, cleaning, interpreting and translation.

Later, by God's guidance, I could connect with Uniting Church to serve God. I used to answer, "I feel more than at Home" to the question, "Do you feel at home" in Australia, because I have never experienced such freedom, love and care.

I did supplied ministry at Noble Park UC for three months. And I have completed my first year of full time placement in Ulverstone- Sprent Parish. I have learned so much, and I have many more things to learn to serve Him effectively in this contemporary societies. God is good all the times.

Strathdevon Extension and Renovation

Non-profit aged care provider Uniting AgeWell is delighted to share its new-look Latrobe Community, Strathdevon with the community. A $10 million extension and renovation of the residence enabled it to expand from 37 to 67 beds and introduce a state-of-the-art kitchen, new community areas and stunning landscaped gardens.

Residential Services Manager Suezanne Horder said the residence had already been inundated with enquiries from members of the community who had seen the building develop and were keen to tour the inside. “We’ve received really positive feedback from the community and people have told us the building and garden is very impressive,” she said. Uniting AgeWell aimed to create a modern and vibrant community for its residents, with a new community café, chapel, gym, hair salon, a state-of-the-art ‘cook fresh’ kitchen, multipurpose room with cinema-like capabilities and activity areas for residents to spend time with family and friends. “There are expansive open areas where we can come together as a whole residence or large group, as well as discrete and private nooks where people can have a small group or one-on-one gathering,” she said. The new residential wing includes premium rooms, each with an ensuite and view of the gardens, and several rooms designed to meet the needs of the indigenous community.

Uniting AgeWell CEO Andrew Kinnersly said the major upgrade of Strathdevon demonstrated the organisation’s ongoing commitment to providing high quality care to older people on the North West coast, particularly in the Latrobe area. “Uniting AgeWell is absolutely committed to supporting people in this region as they age,” he said.
